Former Blaine mayor to pay $2,500 to city as part of plea

by Lilly Adkins
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

LOUISA — Charges against former Blaine Mayor Crystal Meade, who entered a guilty plea Wednesday to charges stemming from an indictment issued in September 2011, have been diverted but she must pay restitution to the city.

Meade was charged with offenses associated with her previous position as mayor. She was indicted on the charges of misapplication of entrusted property, a Class A misdemeanor, and second-degree official misconduct, a Class B misdemeanor.

According to the indictment, Meade failed to turn over several items, including but not limited to bank statements for the city, minutes of past meetings, records of gas deposits, check stubs from the city accounts, the city gas contract, gas meters, (wrenches), 10 tables removed from the community building, security key fobs for city buildings and keys for the bathrooms and gates at the city park.

The indictment also said that Meade failed to maintain adequate city records as required.

As part of her guilty plea last Wednesday in Lawrence District Court, Meade's charges were diverted for one year with certain conditions, which include her INEZ — Two former employees in the Martin County Clerk's Office pleaded not guilty last Thursday to charges related to money missing from the office.

Ex-deputy clerks Tamberlyn Hairston, 41, and her sister, Tonya Mills, 47, both of Lovely, were indicted earlier this month and are scheduled for a preliminary hearing in Martin Circuit Court on Jan. 17, 2013.

They were allowed to remain free on their own recognizance.

Mills is charged with abuse of public trust over $10,000, while Hairston is charged with abuse of public trust under $10,000 and four counts of second-degree criminal possession of a forged instrument.

They are the daughters of Martin County Clerk Carol Sue Mills and both women turned themselves in at the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center in Johnson County after the indictments were released.

According to Tonya Mills' indictment, on or before Jan. 9 through July 14, she obtained and dealt with public money or property subject to a known legal obligation to make a specified payment or disposition as her own, by intentionally failing to make the required payment or disposition of the property when she retained for her use funds of the State commission issues tax recommendations

FRANKFORT — Increasing the cigarette tax by 40 cents, reducing the individual income and top corporate tax rates, and broadening the sales tax to selected services are among the recommendations made last week by the Governor's Blue Ribbon Commission on Tax Reform.

The proposals of the 16-member task force, chaired by Lt. Gov. Jerry Abramson, would raise an additional $659 million in state revenue, according to the group's report.

"As chair of Gov. Beshear's Blue Ribbon Commission on Tax Reform, I am confident that the work by our members over the last 11 months will help to align Kentucky's tax structure with the principles of fairness, economic competitiveness and a 21st Century economy," said Abramson. "Our report is thorough and includes suggested changes to the state tax code that would generate roughly $659 million in new revenue annually once fully implemented. These proposals will also modernize our tax structure, making it fairer for families and businesses. The changes would position Kentucky to create more jobs, further grow our economy and fund many of the services the commission heard were needed all across the Commonwealth. I look forward to working with Gov. Beshear and the leadership in the House and Senate to build a consensus on moving forward with changes to our tax code."

Martin County businessman James Booth was one of the members of the task force, which has been active for the last year.

Among the panel's recommendations:

- Reducing the individual income tax rate from 4 percent to 3.5 percent for those with adjusted gross incomes between $4,001 and $5,000; from 5 percent to 4.5 percent for those grossing between $5,001 and $8,000; from 5.8 percent to 5.5 percent for those grossing between $8,001 to $75,000; and from 6 percent to 5.8 percent for those grossing $75,001 and over.

- Limiting itemized deductions to a $17,500 cap.
- Amending the pension income exclusion from $41,110 to $30,000 and phasing out the exclusion for total income over $30,000.
- Lowering the top corporate tax

SUIT: Fired utilities worker claims he was denied hearing ties company on Oct. 24 in a memorandum from general manager Eric Ratliff.

"The Plaintiff states that he was being terminated for reasons that were not justified or accurate," the suit, filed on Fannin's behalf by Prestonsburg attorney Ned Pillersdorf, said. "... In the notice of termination letter that Plaintiff received, there is no indication as to specifically how an employee may exercise their right to a hearing. There is indication he must do so by close of business on November 5, 2012."

The memorandum, filed as an exhibit to the suit, says that Fannin was suspended without pay until Nov. 5, at which time his employment would be terminated if he had not exercised his right to a pre-disciplinary hearing by the close of business.

On that date, according to the suit, Fannin went to the Paintsville Recreation Center, where he thought the utilities board meets, but was told that the commission meets at the utilities office on Main Street. Fannin then went to that location but could not get inside the building, the suit says.

"The Plaintiff states that he arrived at the Paintsville Utilities Office on Main Street at approximately 4:50 p.m. and knocked on both the front and rear doors signaling his presence," the suit said. "The Plaintiff states that he could observe individuals in the building, but could not access the building due to the fact that the doors were locked and his continued knocking did not cause anyone to open the doors for him. The Plaintiff eventually left at about 5:15 p.m. after being denied access."

Fannin contacted Pillersdorf Nov. 19 and in writing requested a hearing and noted that he had gone to the utilities office but could not get in, the suit said.

On Nov. 20, the utilities commission's attorney notified Fannin that he had waived his right to a hearing and was terminated.

The suit, which names the utilities company and "unknown agents" in their official and individual capacities, seeks punitive damages, Fannin's reinstatement, and compensation for Fannin's "embarrassment and suffering," among other things.

paying restitution to the city of Blaine.

Meade must pay a total of $2,500, in monthly installments of $250 each, according to Lawrence District Court records. After one year, the case will be revisited, and if Meade has satisfied County Attorney Mike Hogan in meeting all the requirements, the case will be closed, the records show.

The charges stem from a complaint filed in April 2011 by current Mayor Geneva Wheeler regarding records and equipment considered to be the property of the city of Blaine that apparently hadn't been turned over to her after she defeated Meade in the election and assumed office.

The original complaint also alleged that Meade tampered with public records by refusing to deliver them, but a no-true bill was issued for the allegation.

dispense Schedule II controlled substances and conspiracy to commit money laundering. Rodriquez-Iznaga, Jody L. Robinson, who owned pain clinics in Florida and Ohio, and an employee, William J. Muldoon Jr., were among numerous people indicted separately in September on charges of dispensing controlled substances without a legitimate medical purpose at several pain clinics and are the first to plead guilty. Rodriquez-Iznaga, Robinson and Muldoon were accused of illegally dispensing pills in several Eastern Kentucky counties, including Lawrence. Robinson and Muldoon pleaded guilty in November to money laundering. Robinson owned pain clinics in Portsmouth, Ohio, and Plantation, Fla. that are now closed. According to a plea agreement with federal prosecutors, he worked in the automotive body repair industry in Southern Ohio, “working long hours at hard labor,” and heard “about the money to be made in pain clinics.” He went to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to “conduct surveillance on a pill clinic” and became a patient at one of the clinics. During his visits, he met Rodriquez-Iznaga, who eventually helped him establish Florida Global Pain Clinic in Plantation in July 2008. She also became the in-house physician, the plea agreement says. “Dr. Rodriquez started complaining to the Defendant that she needed more patients, presuming that the Defendant would bring in more patients,” the plea agreement says. “The Defendant began efforts to increase the patient load by several means including patient lists from an MRI business and contacting them to come to Florida Global Medical using a dial up service to contact patients on the list.” Robinson also used the services of two people in Ohio and the Eastern District of Kentucky to recruit individuals in those areas to go to the Florida clinic. The initial office visit fee to the clinic was $150 to $160 in cash, and the cost of filling a prescription at the in-house pharmacy was approximately $300, the agreement says. “Dr. Rodriquez did not want any patients using insurance and also wanted all patients to obtain a Florida I.D.,” the agreement says. “The Defendant estimated Dr. Rodriquez initially saw 30-35 patients per day at the clinic.” The business arrangement was a 50-50 split of revenue from the office visit, with all office expenses coming out of Robinson’s half of the money, the agreement says. Robinson later opened a clinic in Portsmouth, Ohio, due to the number of patients who came from Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia to the Florida facility. “The driving factor for the Defendant’s and Dr. Rodriquez’s involvement in the pill clinics was the need to make money in a short period,” the agreement says. “Dr. Rodriquez made over $500,000 from July 2008 through December 2008. The Defendant made at least $400,000.” Evidence at the doctor’s trial showed that she made $641,000 in a one-year span by illegally prescribing 600,000 Oxycodone pills to her patients. Muldoon was hired by Robinson to help advertise the Florida clinic and was aware of the “high probability” that Robinson and Rodriquez were operating the clinic for the “purpose of issuing prescriptions to patients without legitimate medical purpose and outside the usual course of medical practice,” according to his plea agreement. Among others indicted on similar charges are the owners and doctors of former pain clinics in Paintsville and Auxier. Their cases are pending. Sentencing for Rodriquez-Iznaga is scheduled for April 8.

clerk’s office in an amount over $10,000. According to Hairston’s indictment, on or about March 17, 2011, through June 21, Hairston, also known as Tammy Perry, obtained and dealt with public money or property subject to a known legal obligation to make a specified payment or disposition as her own, by intentionally failing to make the required payment or disposition of the property when she retained for her use funds of the clerk’s office in an amount under $10,000. On Oct. 15, 2011, Hairston was allegedly in possession of a forged check made to Kathy Preece in the amount of $350, with the intent to defraud; on Oct. 21, 2011, she was allegedly in possession of a forged check made to Tim Smith in the amount of $175 with the intent to defraud; on Oct. 28, 2011, she was in possession of a forged check made to Kathy Preece in the amount of $420 with the intent to defraud; and on Nov. 11, 2011, she was in possession of a forged check made to Kathy Preece in the amount of $320 with the intent to defraud. Both Mills and Hairston were fired from their job by their mother in August after funds were reportedly found missing from the office. The indictments were issued soon after State Auditor Adam Edelen released the findings of an audit of the clerk’s 2011 financial statement and found a number of problems, not only with the 2011 financial statement but also in a review of the 2012 accounts, where more than $16,000 in undeposited cash receipts were discovered. The audit was turned over to Kentucky State Police.

5 common computer problems you can fix yourself

by Kim Komando

Computers always act up at the worst times. You're in the middle of a major report or playing your best game ever and - pffft. Often, users get so frustrated that they needlessly go out and buy a new computer or pay for a computer repair. With a cool head and a little know-how, however, it's easy to fix the most common computer problems. In fact, the solutions I recommend below are free.

1. Speed up a sluggish PC

Computers slow down over time - that's normal. If your PC is fairly new and it's slow, remove the pre-installed programs, or bloatware, that came with it. PC Decrapifier will remove trial programs and other junk in a snap.

To give an older PC a speed boost, break out the CCleaner. This tool looks through Windows, Web browsers and other third-party programs for unwanted clutter and gets rid of it. CCleaner can also scan and fix errors in Windows' registry. Just make sure you allow it to backup the registry before making changes.

Grab Duplicate Cleaner to remove duplicate files that might be clogging up the system. But, limit your file hunt to the Documents area of your computer. You don't want to accidentally delete important system files.

In your cleaning process, you might find programs you no longer need. Windows' built-in uninstaller has a tendency to leave fragments scattered around your hard drive. You can remove those fragments efficiently with Revo Uninstaller.

2. The Blue Screen of Death

Thankfully, Windows' dreaded "Blue Screen of Death" is getting to be a rare event, but it still occurs. When it does, it isn't very helpful in helping you hunt down the problem.

The problem can often be traced to bad memory modules. Memory is cheap and buying extra RAM capacity is usually worth it for the performance boost. You can find out what kind of memory your computer takes with this scanner.

It's not difficult to remove and install memory modules. You'll find video tutorials at all the major online memory stores.

Just remember to ground yourself when you open your computer. You don't want to fry sensitive electronics with static electricity.

3. The zombie spyware plague

A message pops up on your screen repeatedly, telling you to buy a security program. It happens so often that you can't get any work done.

Your gut tells you that this is a rip-off, and your gut is correct. The message is aware that found its way on to your system, probably through an online ad for a "free" security scan you clicked on.

If you do download - and often pay for - the security program, you'll end up with fraudware. No matter how many times you run the program it will always find the same problems and keep trying to get more money out of you.

Before you buy any security software, make sure it's real. Use this site to stay current on fake antivirus programs.

Once you have fraudware, running a real antivirus program probably won't help. To stop the pop-ups, you must run an anti-spyware program. There are a number of good ones - I'd start with Ad-Aware. You can find that and more legiti-mate free security software in my Security Center.

4. SD card stuck in CD/DVD slot

This is one for the Mac people. If you're distracted or pre-occupied, it's annoyingly easy to shove an SD camera card into an iMac's superdrive. The two slots are right next to each other on the right side of the computer.

You don't have to take the machine apart or ship it to a service center. The fix is easy. Cut an L-shape out of cardboard to use as a fishing hook. Slide it in and pull out the SD card. Watch this video to see how it's done.

5. Network issues

If your wireless network is dead, your router, cable or DSL modem probably crashed. It happens. Reboot the gadgets by unplugging them for 30 seconds, then plugging them back in. That usually solves the problem.

If your signal is weak or the connection is slow or drops out, there are a few tricks you can try to improve your home Wi-Fi, such as the beer-can antenna booster. I made a fun video to show you exactly how to make your own. Watch it now.

A MESSAGE FROM PHILLIP BLAIR.

A Petition has been filed in the Lawrence Circuit Court, Family Division, by the Cabinet for Health and Family Services against Melanie Ann McCoy and the Unknown Father of Destiny Paige McCoy. The Petition seeks to terminate the parental rights of Melanie Ann McCoy and the Unknown Father of Destiny Paige McCoy. I, Phillip Blair, represent no one in his lawsuit. Rather, I have merely been appointed by the Court as a "Warning Order Attorney" to publish this message to inform the Unknown Father of Destiny Paige McCoy of this matter. I further advise that: (a) you may acquire additional information about this matter by consulting with the Lawrence Circuit Court Clerk about this case (which is number 12-AD-11); (b) if you are an interested party and take no action within the next 50 days, a Court Judgment may be entered in the case.
